Bob McGuire, longtime East Bay track coach, dies at 87

Bob McGuire, a successful longtime track and field and cross country coach at Pleasant Hill High, and later at Cal State Hayward, died on Tuesday after a brief illness. He was 87.

McGuire, a Pleasant Hill resident, was inducted into the Pioneer Athletics Hall of Fame in 1996.

He guided Cal State Hayward (now Cal State East Bay) to the NCAA Division II women's national track and field championship in 1981, and helped the Pioneer women collect Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW) Divisional II cross country national titles in 1979-80, coaching at the school until 1992.

He was Northern California Athletic Conference (NCAC) Coach of the Year six times. His coaching career at Pleasant Hill High spanned from 1956-78, as his teams were considered area powers.
