

Figure 6: The MAP clustering of a subset of CORA. Each node is an abstract in the collection and each link represents a citation. Colors are repeated across connected components – no two data points from disconnected components in the graph can be assigned to the same cluster. Within each connected component, colors are not repeated, and nodes with the same color are assigned to the same cluster.