

Models

- Silicate liquid immiscibility: fractional crystallization, then melt separates
  - Unlikely to produce large extrusive silicic deposits but could form plutons when magma ocean cooled
- Basaltic underplating: melt anorthositic crust and produce silicic magma
  - Heat producing elements, thin crust, basaltic magmatism all support this